 - c) loss incurred to another person due to any damage or destruction of tangible assets or due to injury or death of an animal which such a person owns, uses or has legitimately from any other legal title;

Furthermore, the presumption of the origin of a right to indemnification in case of any financial loss is that there was an activity or omission causing the loss within the insurance period. Other presumptions of the origin of a right to indemnification may be agreed on in an insurance policy.
